Foreword

By way of these same doors that just four years ago welcomed us inward, we are now leaving. They have been happy years, years in which we have gained knowledge, acquired worthwhile friendships, and learned the significance of honesty, courtesy, and sincerity. Now, we are about to enter a new world,—a world which may bring success, failure, happiness, or sorrow. In leaving, we wish to thank our teachers for their excellent guidance and to wish that our classmates may find the road to success and happiness.

JEAN LOUISE UTZINGER.

Alma Mater Speaks

So I, your Alma Mater, come to you
To raise my torch of hope and knowledge high
That you may see all doors, once closed, swung wide.
You leave my halls to do you know not what;
You leave my doors to go you know not where;
And Time will lock behind you as you pass
The classroom and its challenge and its fun,—
Activities where all your interest lay.
The doors to labor, business, all seem locked;
To most are closed the college portals old;
But as cathedral doors are wide for all,
So doors to Leisure's temple, too, are wide.
Go, offer Leisure, when your work is done,
Your learning, reading, your creative skill.
Go proudly lay upon her altars there
Your service, love, and all the best you have.
No enemy, so keen; no friend, so kind.
Go forward now, my children and my pride.

HELEN STRONG PIFFARD.

Mr. Lindsey Best
Our Principal

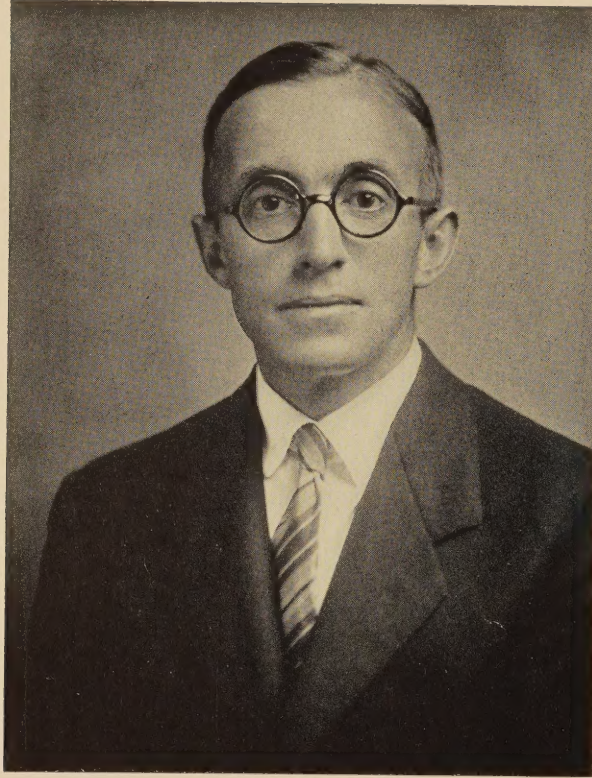

Dedication

We dedicate our year book of 1934 to our principal, Mr. Lindsey Best. And we wish this tribute to be not only a dedication; we wish it to be also an appreciation.

Since 1901, Mr. Best has been connected with the Plainfield High School — first, as teacher of science; since 1909, as principal of the school.

He has brought to his executive position a rich background of experience, of culture, of educational ideals. Under his guidance, the Plainfield High School has stood for the highest standards: clean sportsmanship, fine scholarship, integrity of character. To meet the individual problems of each pupil has been his deepest concern. Always, whether the matter related to a present school difficulty or to plans and hopes for the future, he has been ready to help us with unfailing patience and generosity. Always, he has trusted in our finest possibilities and tried to help us to fulfill them. His leadership has brought to the school the spirit of co-operation — co-operation among students and between students and faculty.

We regret greatly that he must leave us. With him, as he enters on a period of greater leisure, will go the warmest wishes, not only of the Senior Class, but of all the students and faculty of the Plainfield High School.

Roman Scandals

DEAR EVELYNA:

I intended to write last Saturday, but I couldn't find the time. I had a date with Frankus. He called for me about nine hours after the noon, and we rolled down to the Arena in his new "three-wheeling" chariot. Allingus and Rutha Latta went on a double date with us, and we let them ride in the rumblus seat. (Oh, what a rumblus seat!) We had five dollars to spend among us.

At the Arena, we saw a bull fight. Bubus Piersonius fought Tarsus, the bull. Afterwards, there was a gladitorial fight between Billus Popus and the Terror, Johnus Bilnapius. (Hot cha!) The latter won. Do you know why? Because he struck a match on the back of Cleo's chair and lit (not intoxicated) a Murad. Be nonchalant! Rutha Latta Davus then brought forth beautiful strains of music with her lyre (liar!)

By the way, we sat in the peanut gallery, for two bits, so that we could have a lot of money left over for spending afterwards.

Then the beautiful maiden, Jeania Louisia, was sacrificed to the god of Love, O'Neill. Her parting words were, "I still don't see why —." Johnus Sabienus picked up her ashes while two of his large tears sizzled in the silence as they touched the remains of his past love. Oh, woe unto me!

Later, we went to the Forum where the most illustrious Dumpus Van Matrus delivered his plea "Pro Dutcho" (for the Dutch) against the most esteemed and learned Haroldus Hennigius. Dumpus surprised us all by winning his case because Haroldus is so much more experienced. More power to him. Then we all went to Galanus's and had sodas. I crawled into bed just as the sun sent its first rays over the horizon. As I dropped into dreamland, I thought how smooth we all had looked. Rutha wore her new blue toga, Frankus his green one. Allingus appeared in a gorgeous purple, and I wore my pink. I had the best time.

Well, my dear Evelynna, I ran into your Lady Killer Dilkes the other day with my chariot. It was really his fault, but he gave me one of his charming smiles, and I didn't have the heart to scold him for it.

I must close now to get this off by the next runner. Write soon and tell me all the gossip and be good!

Vale,
BARBARA.

Class History

FRESHMAN CLASS

JUST as Columbus crossed the Atlantic Ocean in the Mayflower, or maybe it was the Tea Rose, in search of new worlds to conquer, so did we, the class of A. D. 1934, cross Park Avenue on our bicycles in search of Plainfield High School. And just as Columbus, inspired by gratefulness and thanksgiving and stuff like that, knelt on the sands of America's shore giving thanks to our Lord, so did we, upon entering our beloved institution, kneel, not in adoration, but because otherwise we could not have reached the steps. Awed by the presence of so many elders, just as Columbus had been awed by the presence of so many Indians on his arrival, we crept softly about the spacious corridors, little dreaming that in four years we would graduate the largest and most versatile class yet to receive the diploma. In July, 1620, England became too crowded for comfort, so our many Pilgrim forefathers, bless their souls, broke away and established a settlement of their own in America. In September, 1930, the High School assembly became too crowded because of the large size of our mighty little Freshman class, so we broke away and formed a new assembly of our own on Thursday mornings.

During the early days of settling in our country, various hardy pioneers braved the wilds of the Allegheny Mountains to search for new stamping grounds (the ground back home was getting a bit worn out) and they got them. During this momentous Freshman year, Johnny Sabino braved the wilds of the Watchung Valley fairways in search of a letter in golf. He got it.

And, already copying the style of the tough pioneer Amozones, Helen Oszeyczik and Allene Carkhuff were winning acclaim in the field of feminine athletics. A modern Pocahontas was in the making, as Ruth Van Middlesworth began hitting the bull's eye in archery.

Back in the eighteenth century, George Washington offered a prize for the best theme to be written on the rights of man. Tom Jefferson won this prize with the Declaration of Independence. Here, in the twentieth century, the W. C. T. U. offered a prize for the best theme to be written on "Alcohol and Its Results," or "The Mourning After." Arthur Hopper, a member of our class, won this prize.

At first, the early settlers had no special form of government. Neither did we as Freshmen, for, shame of shames, we forgot to elect officers. However, we were saving our great political ventures for the future. It was at this date that our forefathers were getting tired of King George and were looking toward becoming a new republic of their own; and thus did we look forward before exams toward reaching that "height of delight"—the SOPHOMORE class.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

The revolution began and so did our Sophomore year. During the Revolution, many battles were fought, notably the battle of Bunker Hill, then the best known golf course in the country, and the battle of Saratoga whose famous sulphur springs were even then being exploited as a cure for rheumatism, boils, toothaches, etc., and which were guaranteed to "remove" all troubles. Our battles were fought on the gridiron and various of our classmates, Joe Widuson, Bill Pope, and Chet Dalby, were leaders in the strife, all receiving football letters. Paul Revere and his horse set an old-time record for speed as they won the first American steeplechase from Boston to Lexington. However, Eddy Ryan, a mere Sophomore, or should I say a great Sophomore, easily surpassed that record as he led the P. H. S. track team to victory after victory in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. The counterpart of Revere's horse was the Galloping Ghost Dom Belardo who became Plainfield's greatest broad jumper. John Paul Jones became America's first sea Admiral. Loren Dilkes became the first member of our class to win his letter in swimming. Our forefathers may have developed many great sharpshooters during their fight for liberty, but none who could surpass Julie Schwartz as a point getter for the basketball team. And in the meantime, Johnny Sabino continued to menace the golf links (no relation to cuff links) by again winning his letter in golf. Financial difficulties presented America's most serious problem in Revolutionary days. It was the same way with the athletic association, for, because of lack of funds, our pride and joy, the baseball team, which had a perfect record of defeated games the year before, was discontinued.

Like our ancestors, we were not slighting our governmental duties. They elected George Washington for president, and many other equally famous men to support him. We showed equally good judgment when we elected Frank O'Brien for president, and Ralph Taylor, William Pope, and Loren Dilkes as his assisting officers. As yet, women had no important place in the politics of our class. However, even now the germs of woman suffrage were being spread, for, just as Parliament was forced to order the surrender of the British troops, so was the Board of Education forced to surrender a new field house for feminine use only. A mass meeting was held by the ladies to dedicate and present this house. For them, it was the first step toward feminine supremacy.

In 1781, revolutionary activities ceased and the colonists sadly depleted by the war set about to form a good, dependable republic. In 1932, our Sophomore class, sadly depleted by exams, set about to form a good, dependable Junior class.

JUNIOR CLASS

We continue with our parallel histories of the United States and the class of 1934. Nothing very exciting happened to our country from the year 1781 to the year 1860. At least, we have forgotten the things that did happen. In the year 1860, rough and ready Abe Lincoln was elected president of the United States. In our Junior year, sweet and simple Frank O'Brien, our Wild Irish Rose, started in on his second term as president of our class. The upset of Lincoln's election was nothing compared with the upheaval which occurred as our women finally banded together sufficiently to elect one of their number, Betty Buy, as treasurer of the class. Miss Buy proved to be Miss Thrift as the year went on, for she turned in a large sum of money at the end of the year. Our other officers were Brad Brown and Earl O'Neill. Long live the Irish!

There were various battles of importance during the Civil War, which finally broke out as a result of the 18th Amendment, or something like that. There was, for instance, the fight against the famous Indian Chief "Sitting Bull," in which the Yankees put him and his tribe to rout. This battle was later known as the battle of Bull Run. (He must have run quite a distance; for now the Indian reservations are in New Mexico.)

The Battle of Gettysburg was fought when the communists took the words

"Government of the people, by the people, and for the people" too seriously, thereby spoiling the effect of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. However, these battles and many more, were surpassed by our class in its endeavors on the athletic field. The B. A. A., the "brain" of our athletic endeavors, had two of our classmates as members, Frank O'Brien and Ed Ryan. (Again the Irish is supreme.) Many of the stalwart football players who had a very successful season, came from our class. Basketball received once again Julie Schwartz with Bill Kane and Harold Guest to help him. Four stalwart Juniors helped defeat East Orange for the first time in swimming. These were Loren Dilkes, Frank O'Brien, Earle Pierson, and Hendrik Van Oss. Again the Irish element—this time with a little Dutch mixed in. The track team, captained by Ed Ryan, included Jack Higgins, Hank Van Oss, Dom Belardo, James Meany, Jim Kenyon, and manager, Tom Quinn. Captain Eddy won the state championship in the 100 yard dash.

Lincoln's greatest act was the freedom of slaves. Just imagine the condition these slaves were in! Imagine how helpless they were without their dice. (Dice is a word which doubtlessly comes from the word ice, although I fail to see the connection, except that the objects are both cubical in shape.) In this momentous year of which we write, Mr. Best's greatest act was the allowing of fellows to wear their sleeves rolled up and their collars open during the hot summer months. In future years, this act will undoubtedly rank on a level with Lincoln's praiseworthy Emancipation Proclamation. (The spelling of that thing alone is praiseworthy.)

During those times the finer arts were by no means being neglected. The acting reached a high pinnacle of success. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the favorite play of those days, set a record for continuous running in the theaters on Broadway and in Paris. Our annual Junior play met with equal success. The main production, "Babbitt's Boy," starring Marion Wyke, Tom Flynn, Charles Squier, Jane Hadley, and Ruth Latta Davey won the city Junior Drama tournament. Marion Wyke won an individual prize for her acting ability.

Lincoln himself set a high standard in oratorical pursuits. Hendrik Van Oss kept the standard high with his efforts, although it must be said that the applause he received was rather peculiar. It is a novel form of applause, and is expected to become very popular. It is a sort of a cheer, originating in New York City, in the Bronx, to be exact. It is made by sticking out the tongue and blowing hard . . . As for music, the Civil War period fell down on us a little, but the Junior Class didn't. Many was the time when we were lulled into sweet sleep by the beautiful cadences issued forth from Earl O'Neill and his violin.

Finally, the Civil War ended, with many brave soldiers fallen by the wayside. The Juniors were afflicted by that strange disease which occurs just after exams. And when this disease had taken its dreadful toll, it was discovered that a mere 250 of us, just about one-half of our original number, were to become Seniors.

SENIOR CLASS

As the years pass, we reach the present time in our eulogy of this most famous and most brilliant of all classes. In 1932 Calvin Coolidge, following the procedure set by his forerunners, when asked to run for president, replied with these famous words, "I do not choose to run." In 1933, Frank O'Brien cast aside the binding chains of Coolidge's example and replied to those who asked him to become president, "I choose to run," which in itself is remarkable, for it is an event of national importance when O'Brien even chooses to walk. He did run however and was elected for the third time in succession by an overwhelming majority. The women were reaching out for a place on the same pedestal with the men, for they managed to install two of their representatives, Jeanette Williams and Catherine Moraller, in the vice-presidential and secretarial offices. To keep the feminine majority down, the Seniors installed Hendrik Van Oss as treasurer.

In 1932, President Hoover was troubled by such disturbances as hunger marchers, strikers, communists, and such. He never got rid of them. In 1934, President O'Brien was troubled by a society within not only the Senior class, but even in the troublesome little Junior class, which objected strenuously to his methods of picking committees. Some of the uncomplimentary terms hurled at the President were quote: "Clique," "Nice fellow," "Good morning," and "How are you." After a bitter controversy, O'Brien quelled the uprising by placing the leaders of the rebellion on a committee chosen to select a Senior Play. They did a fine job too, for they selected the play "Growing Pains" which had just completed a successful season on Broadway. The play was a grand success. What scenery! What acting! What a setting! What action! Camera! Rin-tin-tin! . . . But we seem to be going off on a tangent, which is a straight line leading to a circle, which leads us around to our subject once more.

The United States has risen up from a mere colony struggling for existence and independence to a vast republic, dominating all world affairs. Our class of 1934 has now risen from a mere Freshman class, trying to push its way through crowded corridors to a mighty Senior class, dominating all school affairs. The outstanding members of each sport were from this class. The officers of the Student Council were from this class. A man, mighty in the power of oratory and debate, Harold Hennig, came from this class. Every strong, forceful character came from this class!

Now came that time of year when the old timers gather around a fire and talk about the flood of '88. Years from now, we will be gathering around an electric heater, to talk about the snow of '34, for so mighty was the deluge which fell from the heavens that it forced school, hitherto thought to be the nearest thing to perpetual motion because of its unhalting continuancy, to be closed on days when there were no vacations.

And now, as to our predictions for the future. The future of the world is as yet unsettled. The future of this class is also very uncertain. Who knows yet what he will become and why? However, the world will undoubtedly come to an end sometime, and so must our class history come to an end, and this is the end. It is finished or will be, we hope, for all, on June 21st.

Prophecy

Scene: The reception room of King Pluto's palace in Hades. Charon is present and he and Pluto seem to be having a very pleasant conversation.

Pluto: "Well, Charon, has business been picking up lately?"

Charon: "Verily, it has, sire."

Pluto: "I'm glad to hear that. Things have been pretty dull around here lately. Why, only last week some upstart by the name of Alling Beardsley had the nerve to apply for admission. He wanted his room and board free solely on his ability as a soap-box orator. Imagine Hades inhabited by a fellow always yelling, 'Down with the bosses.' "

Charon: "What bosses, King Pluto?"

Pluto: "The Greyhound bosses, dunce."

Charon: "Is zat so? Well, anyway—since President O'Brien passed the C. O. D. Act (International Osculatory Parkway Commission) things have been picking up and I'll have to take on an assistant soon. I've been thinking of using Hendrik Van Oss. He swam the 100 yard dash on the U. S. Olympic Team in 1940 and 1944. If the boat gets too crowded, he can swim back and forth. Oh, oh, who's this coming?"

Pluto: "He's only Ed Ryan, the new messenger boy. You know, since he won the 220 in the Penn Relay in 1938 and held the record for three years, I thought it was a good idea to have him stationed at the Styx ferry to bring us the news when anybody wanted to cross. Then you can stay here and play pinochle with me when you're not busy." (Ryan hands Charon a telegram.)

Charon (reading the telegram and then handing it to Pluto): "Adios, Pluto. There's a mob at the ferry and I've gotta go."

Pluto: "Well, duty is duty and must not be neglected."

Charon leaves and Pluto takes out a deck of cards and begins playing solitaire. Finding himself cheating, he throws down the cards, walks over to a mirror, and giving himself a scornful look, sneers, and says—"You nasty man!" His feelings relieved, he sprays himself with some "Nights in Perth Amboy" (the latest in perfumes) and sits down to wait for Charon.

* * * * *

The bell peals and the butler, Andy Nelson, opens the door. Charon enters with the nondescript crowd, both male and female, behind him. On his arm is Becky Gartenberg, who is doing her best to make her man. And Charon shows signs of being "made." But who wouldn't? Not many people have the honor of escorting the Box Office Attraction of 1939. Just as he seems on the verge of asking for a kiss, a loud "humph" from Pluto brings him to his senses.

Pluto: "I say, Charon, attend to business and bring them up one by one."

Charon: "Okay, sire—here's the first."

Pluto: "Clerk, take down the record. You, then what's your name and qualifications for admittance to Hades?"

Applicant: "Beatrice Salowe, your honor. I tickled the ivories for George Lehigh Valle R. R. Friese and his band of Fiddling Fiddlers. You know, Pluto, Earl O'Neill plays second fiddle."

Pluto: "Well, sign up over there. We'll try you on a ten day free trial. Next."

Applicant: "What can I do for you, kingy old boy, ol' sock?"

Pluto: "Don't get fresh, young woman. Remember, there is some dignity attached to this office. Now, hurry up. I've got no time to lose. I've got a golfing date at 3 P. M. with Wally Krevis, U. S. open champion. Name and qualifications, please!"

Applicant: "Eleanor Gray, sire. As for qualifications, I have a letter of recommendation here from the President of the What's the Use Chemical Corporation, Mr. Klein. Read it and weep."

Pluto (reading):

"Dear Pluto:

This is to inform you that Miss Gray has served me faithfully for many years as a private secretary. Now that I no longer have any use for her, I wish to recommend her to you.

Yours,

L. K.

P. S. She's a good pinochle player.

P. P. S. See you soon in H——ades."

Pluto (speaking): "Well, a good pinochle player is always welcome, but I can't imagine what the game's coming to when women take it up. But sign up and move on. Next!"

Applicant: "Rah! Rah! Tom Quinn! Rah! Rah! Yay, team! Whoopee!"

Pluto: "Charon! I told you no drunkards were allowed in this place."

Charon: "He's not drunk, sire. He was cheerleader at the U. of P. for seven years, and it's been in his system ever since."

Quinn: "That's right. Rah! Rah! Yay, King Pluto! Rah! Rah!"

Pluto: "I'll rah-rah! you! The only thing you can be around here is a yes-yes man. Next victim!"

Applicant: "Verily, King Pluto, you see before you one who not only charms the eye but also the ear. It behooves me that you have never seen such a stupendous, colossal, magnificent spectacle as I am going to place before your eyes. In short, I introduce to you that world-renowned harpist, the gorgeous Ruth Latta Davey, of the New York Pilamonic Society. Feast your eyes, kingy old boy."

Pluto: "Say, who are you and what are you trying to do? Do you want to come in? Do you want me to admit Ruth—er Miss Davey? Or do you both want to get in?"

Applicant: "Well, I'm David Person, the most dynamic talkative publicity man on this hemisphere. If you want Hades made known to all the universe, to every man, woman, and child, then Pluto, I'm your man. If anybody can do it, I can."

Pluto: "Well, you certainly talk well! But say, that's a good idea. We can advertise Hades in the newspapers—why even in the P. H. S. Entree. Something like cheap rooms, good board, best company, pinochle game every Saturday night. You know, you can work it out. You're on!"

Person: "Okay, boss! And how about our famous harpist? Is she in on this?"

Pluto: "Try and keep her out. I can see where I'm going in for music in a big way. Say, Ruth. What are you doing tomorrow night?"

Ruth: "Sire, you are presuming on our short acquaintance. I excuse your levity and we shall say that nothing passed between us."

Pluto: "Oh, H——eck!" (Silence in the ranks.) "Next."

Applicant: "Sire, it grieves me sorely to see the condition of the inside of the palatial mansion. I don't doubt but that it needs the touch of a woman's hand, a light, delicate touch to brighten up the chambers of this lovely dwelling. Yes, King Pluto, it needs the touch of a woman's hand."

Pluto: "Say, are you proposing to me? Whoa! Charon! Take her away. She's proposing! Whoa! I'm a bachelor and that's how I'm going to stay. Yes, sir!"

Applicant: "Humph! Fresh thing. You're rather presumptuous. I'm not proposing at all. I'm merely an excellent interior decorator by the name of Dot Manners, and I merely wish to redecorate your castle."

Pluto: "Whew, you scared me. After that sales talk, I guess I'll have to let you in or never hear the last of it. Next!"

Rubber Platt: "Cab Calloway the second, your honor! My right name is George Platt, but all my friends call me 'Rubber.' When it comes to music, I've got it and as for tap dancing, just look here. Feet, strut your stuff." (Tap dance.)

Pluto: "Well done, my good man. If you can play pinochle, you're a gold mine. Say, I can do a little tapping myself. Look! Hot cha! Hot cha! cha!" (Pluto taps.) (In middle sinks down exhausted.) "The old extremities don't measure up to the usual standards. Next, and please hurry up. I'm already late for that golf date."

Florence Stevens: "Sire, my name is Florence Stevens and I have the reputation of being the best elementary school teacher in the past two decades. The lack of educational facilities in Hades has impressed me greatly and as a pioneer in the field of educational development, I offer myself, martyrdom though it may be, to do my best to educate the poor ignorants of your domain. A negative answer will avail you nothing, for I have made up my mind to carry out my plan, and carry it out I will."

Pluto: "Yes, teacher! But you're going to have a hard job pounding some knowledge into the head of Cæsar Laratta. He's playing left tackle on our football team. Apparently, he had too good a time in P. H. S. and did not get enough education. If he hadn't made the All-American in 1939, I never would have given him a scholarship. Do you see what kind of a job you'll have? Take it or leave it."

Florence: "I agree. I shall do my best. Let it never be said that I failed in attempting to better mankind."

Pluto: "What words! What words! Save them for later. Next!"

Fred Reiss: "'Tis I, King Pluto. But why should I term you king? Are you elected, appointed, chosen, or picked? From whom do you derive your rights? From God, the people, your conscience, or former experience? Yes, Pluto, but have you ever stopped to think why your name is Pluto? In fact, why are you at all? Why does he (pointing to Charon) exist? Why do I exist? In short, why are we all? Now—."

Pluto: "Why are wheels? Say, I'm supposed to ask the questions around here. Now, who in the name of common sense are you?"

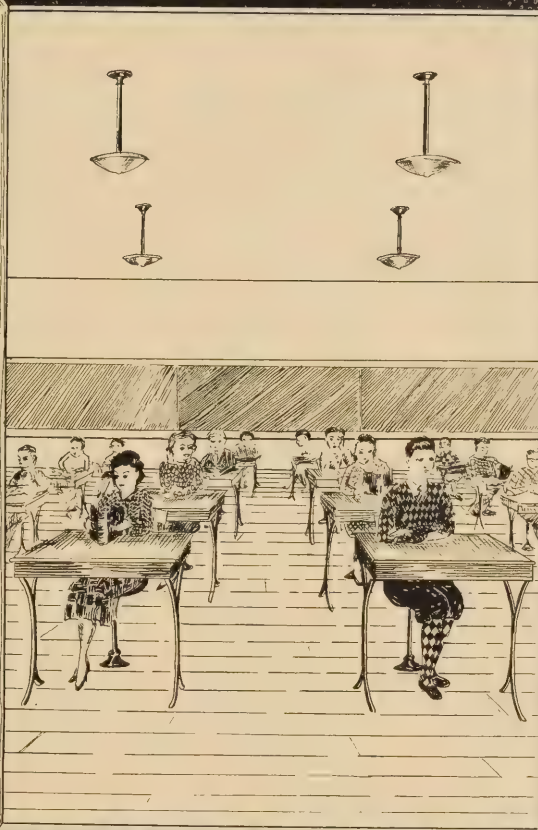

Fred Reiss: "A mere philosopher, sire. A man of the world—one who thinks and thinks and tries to see the light. To go further into the subject, I endeavor to show all erring humans the right way to happiness."

Pluto: "I'll show you the door in a minute. I think you're a fool."

Reiss: "Montreal?"

Pluto: "Silence, dog! If I didn't need a fourth at my next bridge contest, I'd keep you out, but circumstances force me to admit you. That's all for today, Charon I've got to keep my golfing date now, and say, if you can get away from the missus, we'll have a game of pinochle tonight."

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

ATHLETICS

Football

PLAINFIELD HIGH'S 1933 Football Team had a very successful season. The team had but one defeat, a few ties, while it gained six victories.

The Big Red Team opened its gridiron campaign by defeating Bound Brook 3-0. Captain Cæsar Laratta, who led this year's team, won the game by kicking a placement.

The second victory of the season was at the expense of Morristown 12-0. Bill Kane caught a pass and sprinted 45 yards for a touchdown. Plainfield's second score came in the final seconds of the game when Frank O'Brien intercepted a forward pass and galloped 95 yards for the tally.

The team then took Montclair over the bumps 10-9, Mike Blazo making the touchdown. Captain Laratta kicked the extra point and in the final minutes of play kicked a field goal to win the game. This was one of the most spectacular plays of the season.

Plainfield traveled to Phillipsburg and was defeated for the first time this season 18-0.

The team once more came into the winning streak by defeating Summit 12-0. Joe Widoson and Ed Ryan made the scores.

Our next game was with our friends across the brook, North Plainfield, whom we defeated 7-0. Frank O'Brien made the only touchdown. Sonny Coffey, now master of the educated toe, kicked the extra points.

Plainfield was held to its second scoreless tie by Westfield. Steve Faturos and Lightning Simmons did a great job in the line.

The final game of the campaign was won by defeating New Brunswick 7-0. Frank O'Brien caught a pass from Phil Matthews which resulted in the only score of the day. Sonny Coffey kicked the extra point.

Lettermen graduating are Captain Cæsar Laratta, Frank O'Brien, Bill Kane, C. Hogan, Charles Dalby, Joe Widoson, Cliff Smith, Steve Faturos, Loren Dilkes, Mark Mendez, Tony Terrible, Vic Sarte, Lester Klein, Ed Ryan, Jim Kenyon, Bill Pope, and Manager Hank Van Oss.

In leaving, we Seniors wish the team of '34 the best of luck and may they have as successful a season as ours.

Swimming

THE swimming team had a fairly successful season this year. Although it was very strong in spots, it lacked the all-round strength necessary to win its meets. We placed fourth in the state meet. The relay team consisting of Earl O'Neill, Frank O'Brien, Hank Van Oss, and Captain Loren Dilkes was very strong, breaking the school record and placing second in the state meet at Trenton. Hank Van Oss was undefeated in dual meet competition among high schools, but placed second in the 100 yard dash at the state meet.

Lettermen graduating are as follows: Captain Loren Dilkes, Hank Van Oss, Frank O'Brien, Earl O'Neill, Bub Pierson, Red McKenna, and Jim Loizeaux.

Basketball

PLAINFIELD HIGH'S Basketball team began, what seemed to be a very successful season, by defeating Rahway, 17 to 11. Bob Strain and Julie Schwartz were high scorers for the team.

The next victory came at the expense of Perth Amboy, 26 to 22. Ed Hussey's "hook shots" were responsible for a great many of Plainfield's points.

Westfield traveled to Plainfield and was defeated in the last thirty seconds. Mark Mendez scored two field goals in the closing seconds of the game making the score 21 to 20 in favor of the Red Team.

Our first defeat was experienced in Somerville by the score 21 to 19.

Roselle Park was defeated in our gym, 41 to 23. The team was without the services of its star guard Bill Kane, who played his last game for Plainfield in Somerville.

Morristown caused our second defeat, the score being 28 to 25.

Montclair was set back by the Red Team, 38 to 18. Ed Hussey again played a great game. Schwartz was injured and had to give up playing for the remainder of the season.

Princeton High's Team was victorious on our court defeating Plainfield, 23 to 19. Dobson played a great defensive game.

Mark Mendez's clever shots were the cause of Plainfield's defeating Red Bank, 29 to 19.

Our friends from across the brook defeated us 24 to 21. This game was the last in which Mark Mendez played.

Madison defeated our team 26 to 18.

Plainfield suffered another loss at the expense of Bound Brook, 36 to 27. Strain played an excellent defensive game.

North Plainfield won the City Championship by defeating Plainfield for the second time this year. The score was 27 to 24. Taylor, a freshman, was the outstanding player for Plainfield.

Asbury Park defeated the team by the score 49 to 18. Bob Strain made 14 of our points.

Plainfield closed its season by being defeated by Hillside, 25 to 13. Red Malang played a wonderful defensive game.

Although the victories were not as numerous as usual this year, the playing and sportsmanship of the players was outstanding.

Lettermen are: Mark Mendez, Ed Hussey, Julie Schwartz, Bill Kane, and Ken Brown.

Track

THE prospects of a successful track season this year are brighter than usual.

Under the leadership of Ed Ryan, last year's State Champion and undefeated for two years in the sprints, the team will enter a meet schedule. Other members of last year's team who will help to make Plainfield High's colors victorious are: John Gannon, sprinter; Dom Belardo, broad jumper and middle distance runner; John Higgins, pole vaulter and low hurdler; Jim Kenyon, hurdler; Lew Fusco, distance runner; and Bugs Van Arsdale, middle distance runner.

Baseball

PROSPECTS for a successful baseball season this year are very slim. This is chiefly due to the majority of the lettermen returning this year being ineligible. In the past Plainfield High's teams have always played better under handicaps. We hope this will be true this year.

The schedule for this year is as follows:

April 18	Roselle Park
April 25	Westfield
April 27	Morristown
May 4	Linden
May 8	Millburn
May 11	Westfield
May 18	N. P. H. S.
May 22	Hillside
May 25	Perth Amboy

Hockey

THE Seniors were very successful this year as we defeated all other class teams, therefore having the honor of getting our numerals. We were invited to Westfield where we played one game. The two teams were composed of one-half Plainfield girls and one-half Westfield girls. Westfield then played host to us and served very delicious refreshments. We had a successful year, worked hard, and had several outstanding players.

Archery

THE Seniors had a very successful season. We won the archery tournament with 309 points. Ruth Van Middlesworth was a very successful president. She proved her ability by organizing and conducting the archery tournament with the able assistance of the four class captains. The girls all seemed to have a very good time and were usually always out to practice.

Tennis

WE HAD a very successful season with three additional courts which allowed more playing for everybody. There were several tournaments in doubles and singles, each match winning one point for that certain class. The tennis championship is to be played off in the Spring between the Seniors and the Freshmen, as the Freshmen and we are tied, each having three points.

ALTHOUGH the Seniors turned out for practices in large numbers, we did not have a very successful season. We defeated the Freshmen by the score of 16-26. We had very good material in our team as four of our number made the Red and Blue Team, which is a great honor as only skilled players are able to make these teams.

ORGANIZATIONS

The Student Council

THE Student Council is the governing body of the Plainfield High School. Its members consist of the officers of each class, the presidents of the various organizations, and the patrol captains. The Council holds one meeting each month at which all business concerning school affairs is carried on.

The members are as follows:

EVELYN WILSON	Vice-President
JEANETTE WILLIAMS	Secretary
BOB STRAIN	Treasurer

Virginia Barrett	Justin Glide	Andrew Nelson

The Student Patrol

THE Student Patrol consists of a group of eighty boys and girls who are elected by the school after they have filled the requirements of a petition. Upon entering the patrol, each member takes an oath, after which he receives a badge. Once a month a meeting is held and the problems of the school are confronted by the patrol. It is the object of the members to conduct and carry out the laws of the school without favoritism to friends. The patrol has worked out very well, and as the co-operation of the school increases, the patrol will run more smoothly.

The Entree

THE Entree, Plainfield High School's weekly publication, has enjoyed a very successful year in the editorial field. It has been sold every Monday during both lunch periods for the very reasonable price of three cents.

This paper was originated on March 27, 1933, under the leadership of Arthur Lovenhar and Charles Courain, with the aid of Mr. Dunavan, Miss Green, and Mr. Persinger as faculty advisers.

The staff were organized with the purpose of presenting to the school a full and detailed account of the activities in and around P. H. S. without showing partiality to any one group or person. Their endeavor was to maintain a high standard of news.

The Entree board is divided into three parts: the editorial staff, composed of editors and reporters; the feature staff, who write feature articles, book reports, and editorials; and the business staff, who handle the advertising.

This year's board, under the able leadership of James McGinley, has tried to uphold the ideals established by the originators.

Library Service Council

TO KEEP the Library in order and to help Miss Bonney, our librarian, handle the large number of books used daily, has been the work of the Library Service Council. The membership follows:

RUTH HARMAN	President
RALPH MOLTER	Vice-President
ARTHUR HOPPER	Secretary
EDITH BAHM	Treasurer

Margaret Van Alstyne	Josephine Neal
Gilbert Gardner	Ann Preuss
Ruth Whitney	Katherine Taynor
Gertrude Bishop	Audrea Coddington

Thrift Council

IT HAS been a custom of the school to conduct a weekly banking system. In order to successfully carry out this system, a committee consisting of three members is appointed each year. Its duty is to collect the deposits from each room and to make out a statement which is submitted to the bank each week. In order to arouse a little more enthusiasm among the rooms, a banner is awarded to the room having the largest number of deposits. This has been found to be very successful in increasing the percentage of banking this year.

The members of the council are: Paul Case, Arthur Hopper, Lois La Rue.

Dramatic Society

THE main purpose of the dramatic society, under the direction of Miss Ruth Le Fevre, is to provide an outlet for the dramatic instincts of the students. In the past year all members have had to qualify in voice and interpretation. The members are:

Debating in 1934

AS HAS been done in the past, the Debating Society carried on debating activities weekly throughout the school year. The Society chose as President Harold Hennig, an experienced debater who had just come from Los Angeles, California. Doris Smith was elected secretary. Miss LeFevre continued being sponsor of the Society.

Of the many interesting debates held, the most noteworthy was perhaps the one on the subject of the Abolition of Grades, in which the affirmative won unanimously.

The Debating Team engaged in ten regular debates with six different High Schools. All debates were on the subject: Resolved: That the United States should adopt the essential features of the British System of Radio Operation and Control.

The first debate was at Princeton High School, February 14, in which Charles Freeburn and Harold Hennig defended the Negative. These were non-decision debates. The Return-debate was held in our auditorium on the 16th.

On the 21st our Negative defeated Perth Amboy, and North Plainfield on the 27th.

On March 5th we had a double-header. The Affirmative defeated Bound Brook here. The Negative did likewise at Bound Brook.

March 9th the Affirmative Team tasted defeat against North Plainfield, but avenged itself on Perth Amboy on the 16th.

The annual Triangle Debates between Morristown, Westfield, and Plainfield were held on Friday, the 23rd. The Affirmative was defeated by Morristown at Westfield, while the Negative triumphed over Westfield at Morristown. In this series all the negatives won.

If this season can be termed successful, credit must be given first of all to our coach, Miss LeFevre, and then to the members of the team who, captained by Harold Hennig, worked diligently to uphold the honor and prestige of Plainfield High School.

Senior Play

THE Senior Class was fortunate this year in presenting "Growing Pains" by Aurania Rouveral. The play is the story of youth; its trials, its tribulations. It was most suitable because the actors portrayed characters of their own age.

The loving, sympathetic mother, Mrs. MacIntyre, was played by Barbara Davis. Willard Freck made a sensitive father and Latin professor. Angela Porcello as Terry, and Thomas Flynn as George, the MacIntyre children, won the hearts of the audience. The flirt, Prudence Darling, was played by Elizabeth Kraml. Mildred O'Mahony was very characteristic of a strict mother who objects to her daughter's being left out of social functions. The daughter was ably played by Anne Wrubleski. Douglas MacLaurey, a newcomer to the school, fitted well into the part of Brian, Terry's "secret sorrow." William Pope made quite a hit as the brusque policeman.

The rest of the characters were impersonated by George Friese, Norman Ayer, Jack Scott, William Rossy, Ruth Latta Davey, Jeanette Williams, Virginia Thompson, Louise Brown, Ruth Harman, Jack Hamer, William Brokaw, and Virginia Lord.
